Open Manpower Office Here

The Michigan Employment Security Commission announces the opening of a Manpower office at Grayling.

Manpower services to be offered by the office include: the registration of applicants seeking work, taking job orders from employers, furnishing labor market and training program information, referrals to jobs, training programs and to agencies offering supportive services, however, the payment of unemployment claims will still be handled by the West Branch Office.

The Commission recognizes that in general, rural areas have not been receiving the benefits of manpower services or programs available to urban areas. It is this recognition which has prompted the establishment of offices in rural areas.

The Manpower office in Grayling is located at the County Courthouse and will be open every afternoon, Monday through Friday. Don Czernik will be in charge of the office and is available to provide services to both applicants and employers in Crawford County. Mr. Czernik may be reached by dialing 348-2222.

Forest Fire Time Here

LANSING — Northern Michigan's spring forest fire threat, delayed by last winter's heavy snow cover and this season's late breakup, is expected to reach its peak during May, warns the Department of Natural Resources.

The situation is gradually starting to build up in many northern areas where the last traces of snow have melted to expose dead and drying vegetation. Unless rains fall at the right times and in the right places, it will undoubtedly worsen during the next two or three weeks before spring green-up as debris burning hits full stride and thousands of mushroom hunters, fishermen, and other outdoor users move into northern forests.

"As a general rule," observes DNR Forest Fire Chief Robert

J. Compeau, "more than 50 percent of this state's annual forest fire losses are suffered by the end of May because of the combination of conditions which are now developing in our northern areas."

"Naturally," he continues, "we hope to make a big improvement on that standing record this spring, but it's going to take the all-out cooperation of everyone."

On that score, Michigan is off to a good start this spring as 181 fires had burned only 1,631 acres through April 25. Most of that toll occurred in the southern Lower Peninsula where a spring green-up is expected to advance far enough by next week to ease the season's fire hazards.

Through the same period last year, 552 fires had swept across 14,115 acres in the state.

In an effort to keep this spring's losses below last year, Compeau reminds landowners and outdoor seekers of several stronger safeguards in Michigan's forest fire law which took effect in 1970.

One of those changes requires debris burners in forest and grassland areas to obtain burning permits unless their containers meet new safety specifications. Such approved containers must be built of masonry or metal and have metal covers with openings no larger than (See Forest Fires on page 10)

Little League

By Harry Miller

Over 70 ball players registered and tried out for Little League these past two weeks. The weatherman wasn't very cooperative however, but the desire to play ball didn't let the cold weather keep them away.

The managers met Monday night for the player draft. The boys have been notified if they have been chosen for a major league team. Practice has started and each manager says their team looks like champs.

Cy Wakeley and Jerry Larson will manage and coach the Moose Lodge team. Ron Johnston and Ken Montague, the American Legion team. Two new managers this year are Bill Johnson for the Bear Archery and Sandy "Mayo" Thompson of the Grayling State Bank team.

New uniforms will be issued, so kindly turn the old uniform into the manager.

Next Sunday at 2:00 a big effort to get the playing field in shape will take place. We need your help. Bring a rake and shovel.

Volunteer Effort Forges History of Michigan Week

Michigan was a dammed in disaster in 1953. Business was sluggish, the economic picture looked bleak, and gloom enveloped the state.

Then, stalwart men of Michigan—businessmen, educators, industrialists, labor leaders, and leading citizens—came riding to the rescue. They formed an organization called Greater Michigan, Inc., later to become the Greater Michigan Foundation, and decided to sponsor a grand event "up with Michigan."

Michigan Week, as they envisioned it, would be a "do it yourself" project with the people of Michigan working together to further their own state. Thus, Michigan Week was born.

The first Michigan Week observed in 1954, with a dedicated group of volunteers pushing the idea that "Michigan is the greatest." The program has continued and expanded along the same lines each year, as more and more citizen volunteers put their shoulders to the wheel for Michigan.

Same Objectives
Michigan Week goals in 1971 are the same as they were in 1953: 1) To give Michigan citizens a greater knowledge and appreciation of their state; 2) To expound the state's assets and resources for industry, business, education and recreation; and to display Michigan's advantages to the nation and the world; 3) To foster a cooperative spirit among all the communities and people so that all of Michigan will work together to make the state even more livable and attractive.

Michigan Week strength derives from the sum total of the people in Michigan communities, all striving to the utmost to boost their locality and their state.

Volunteers in counties and communities throughout the state operate their own Michigan Week programs with a minimum of staff assistance from the state office operated by the Greater Michigan Foundation at 809 Center Street, Lansing 48905. Tax-deductible contributions from business firms, labor unions, organizations and individuals support the charitable-educational foundation. The Legislature also makes a modest contribution each year.

Noted restaurateur Win Schuler is currently president of the Greater Michigan Foundation.

The Terrier Barks

By Richard L. Milliman

I'm taking up the role of the terrier this week, to nip at the heels of an elephant.

That's a rather obtuse introduction to a piece that questions the logic of one of the titans of American journalism.

John S. Knight writes invariably interesting, thought-provoking, and well-constructed "Editor's Notebooks" in his mammoth chain of big-city newspapers.

But I ran across one the other day that leaves me scratching my head -- oh, not about the content, but about what some unrelated aspects of it seem to indicate.

He was talking about U. S. involvement in Southeast Asia -- as he is wont to do rather frequently. Included was the following phraseology:

"Responsible critics of our Indochina involvement, such as former Defense Secretary Clark Clifford, believe that President Nixon should wind down the war by concentrating U. S. troops in small, easily defended areas prior to withdrawal and announce a date certain for a pullout by the end of this year."

The key to my perplexity is that phrase "responsible critics" and the evident awe it notes about Mr. Clifford.

Then later, Mr. Knight writes: "Other than Sen. George McGovern, who saw the light many years ago, the Muskies, Humphreys and the Kennedys were all waving the flag and talking of our 'sacred commitments' in the days when a hard look at Vietnam and our involvement there might have changed the course of history."

Now, the Knight references are crystal clear: Mr. Clifford, somehow, deserves the toga of statesmanship; Sen. Muskie, Kennedy and Humphrey are political opportunists; what he means about Sen. McGovern, I can't really tell.

But the point that bothers me is this: Mr. Clifford, as Mr. Knight notes, is a former secretary of defense, under President Johnson, and -- if I recall my political dopestism properly -- he also was one of the key, behind-the-scenes confidants of both President Kennedy and President Johnson before he took public office in the dwindling days of the Johnson era.

My point is that Mr. Clifford obviously was in a position -- both public and private -- to influence decision-making on Vietnam. But during his regime of influence, our "Indochina involvement" kept getting deeper and deeper.

If he truly deserves the toga of statesmanship, why did he not then prevail with his view to "wind down" the war, and pull out by a date certain? Why didn't he take his "hard look" then... when he was in a position to do more than criticize?

If Mr. Clifford can look over his shoulder, and change his posture with good grace, then why cannot Sen. Muskie, et al? These are just some of the things I find tough to understand about statesmanship -- that is, the principles of selective logic.

Mr. Knight, I am sure, is going to lose no sleep over the perplexity of a small town editor about his choice of diplomatic champions.

For me to question the journalistic efforts of John S. Knight or someone like Eric Sevareid, or James Reston, or William F. Buckley, for example -- would be like a terrier nipping at the heels of an elephant.

It certainly won't harm the elephant -- or even, bother him a bit.

But it does make the terrier feel good.

From Mrs. J. T. Spence, Harrisburg, Pa.: "I grew up in Lansdale, Pa., and remember that we saved string, lead foil, orange wrappers from the Christmas oranges, rags, bones, and iron. When a buyer came through, the few pennies that were paid us, maybe as much as 35 cents, were distributed evenly among the three of us children and dropped into our banks. Mother complained when the milk was pink because a farmer had started milking too soon after the birth of a calf. Also, she changed milkmen frequently when she was convinced that one of them was adding too much water to the milk."

During World War I, mother sewed flags. I think the pay was around 25 cents a dozen for sewing all the stripes and the field together. Many people finished pants, meaning they sewed the band down inside the top and put on the bottoms. Zippers had not been invented. I headed elaborate designs on georgette shirtwaists for 20 cents a dozen.

My father worked on the railroad for less than $25 a week up until World War I, and he worked every day in the month except Sunday. Steam trains gave off cinders that often burned holes in your clothes and always made you dirty.

Design for Michigan Flag Evolved with State History

The State Legislature, in 1911, officially adopted Michigan's Flag with the simple phrase: "The State Flag shall be blue charged with the arms of the state." This is our flag as we know it today.

But it wasn't always like that. On Washington's birthday, February 22, 1837, Michigan's "Boy Governor" Stevens T. Mason presented what is believed to be the first state flag to the Brady Guard of Detroit.

Initial Flag
On July 4, 1865, Governor Henry H. Crapo watched the "official" state flag fly for the first time during the cornerstone dedication of the Soldiers' Monument in the National Cemetery at Gettysburg.

The flag flown by the Brady Guard in Detroit was blue. On one side was a portrait of General Hugh Brady, a state seal, an American flag, a portrait of an unidentified woman, and a number of other items. On the other side was a portrait of Governor Mason, a Brady cap and a white horse.

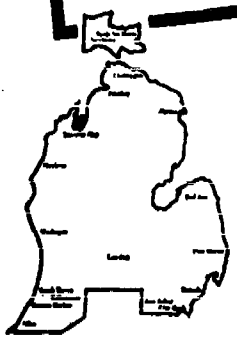

The flag unfurled at Gettysburg bore only the State Coat of Arms on one side and the Coat of Arms of the United States on the other.

The Coat of Arms of Michigan was first designed by General Lewis Cass in 1835, and was patterned after the Seal of the Hudson Bay Fur Company. It went through several changes over the years. However, in 1911 the Legislature reverted back to the original Cass design and adopted it as the official Coat of Arms.

At the top are the words "E Pluribus Unum" which means "From many, one." Below this is an American Eagle holding an olive branch and arrows in its talons. The eagle is surrounded by 13 stars, representing the original states.

Pleasant Peninsula
The shield is supported by two popular Michigan animals, the moose on the left and the bear on the right. The rising sun casts its rays over a lake while a man stands on the peninsula. His right hand is raised symbolizing peace while his left hand holds a gunstock to indicate that although we want peace, we are ready to defend our state and nation.

In A Good Cause

The Post Office Department deserves applause for its latest stamp design, a red and blue one saying, "giving blood saves lives." If only a tiny percent of all the people who will lick or see these 130 million commemorative stamps honoring the nation's blood banks are moved to become regular blood donors, an adequate supply of blood should be assured.

Dr. John B. Henry, president of the American Association of Blood Banks, has pointed out that both the lifesaving idea of the blood bank and the practical thought of having a stamp carry a message, as well as the mail, originated in the United States. The first blood bank was started in Chicago in 1937, and commemorative postage stamps date from the Philadelphia Centennial Exposition in 1876. Until then a stamp collector had little choice. But when special stamps made success of world's fairs, even in depression years, their number increased. They were issued in behalf of many other causes, now happily for blood donation.

If you are in good health and between the ages of 18 and 66, you will be welcome at your local blood bank or collection center. Remember, your donation could save a life.

A Definition of Little League

Little League is a game; Played with a hard ball, gloves, bats and bases. That vaguely resembles baseball. Where the other team always has players bigger than your kids.

Where runs are scored by players moving around the bases after each batter is thrown four balls by the pitcher. Some people say that runs can also be scored by hitting the ball with the bat, but that is rare.

Where an infield hit is a home run. The batter scores as the ball is thrown from one infielder to another. The ball is never caught but dribbles out of reach. In which your team goes into the last inning leading 12-2, and loses 37 to 20.

In which umpires and managers hold conferences about the infield fly rule on which they never agree.

That makes you mad if the coach doesn't put your boy in and gives you butterflies in your stomach if he does.

All of which are some of the reasons why parents think Little League is just about the greatest sport going and twice as interesting as your favorite major league team.

4-H Teen Meet

Our April 24th meeting was enjoyed by all 11 members present. I'm sure. Mrs. Burns and Merrill Baldwin planned a great game. We sat in a circle, piles of magazines in the middle, with a pair of scissors and a paper bag at our side. For the first half hour we cut out words or pictures about ourselves. The ones we thought others saw us as, or what we wanted to be seen as were taped on the outside. Our private thoughts or what we really were, that we did not like about ourselves were put inside the bag.

When our half hour was up we each passed our bag one place to the right. The person on your right would put what they thought about you on the bag. At the end of the allotted time we talked over with each other what was on the bag, and why. Great way to find your problem. Judy Konvicka, sec'y

Women Challenged To Live Creatively With Change

Michigan women can sample college life on the Michigan State University campus June 15-18.

Michigan State University's annual College Week for Women will challenge participants to "Live Creatively With Change," says Wilma Miller, quoting the conference theme. She is the College Week coordinator for Michigan State University's Cooperative Extension Service.

The conference is open to all women. You do not have to have attended college.

"The four-day period includes three mini-classes per day, assemblies and other programs," Mrs. Miller explains. "You live and learn in a high-rise dormitory."

"The coeds" will choose from a list of 24 classes taught by Michigan State University staff and others. Classes deal with such topics as consumer education, family relations, black art, the environment, public school financing and African history.

After a get-acquainted dinner on Tuesday night, the women will hear Dianne McKaig, executive director of the Michigan Consumers Council, speak on "Consumerism and You." The Thursday night session will feature a program entitled "The Creative Women," by Richard Graham of the Department of Human Environment and Design.

Other activities include a show at Abrams Planetarium, a "swim and trim" session and several campus tours.

The entire College Week fee (including meals, registration and lodging) is $40.00. Commuters may attend the activities for $7.00. And women who are unable to attend the entire four days can come on Thursday, June 17 — Visitor's Day. Registration and lunch for them is $4.00.

For further information and/or registration blanks contact: Merrill Baldwin, Extension Home Economist, Cooperative Extension Service, Roscommon, Mich.

SUNDAY'S SERMON

WITHOUT LOVE

If you are fortunate enough to be part of a family that surrounds itself with love you may not share your neighbor's belief that the world is falling to pieces.

We are prone, all of us, to evaluate the world from our own point of view. When life is unkind to us, when someone fails or disappoints us, the first reaction is "What has gone wrong with the world, anyhow?"

The world has not greatly changed for centuries. Progress, of course, from the invention of the wheel to man's first walk in space. But, otherwise, much of the world is as it has been for centuries—good and bad, happiness and sadness, riches and poverty.

Each man may find his happy life in this world. He will not find it without love and unless love touches every facet of his life. Love begins within the home and in the teachings of religion. Without love in the home, without the belief that God is, the chances for happiness are not very promising.

New Michigan Fishing Book

Announced

LANSING — One of the most complete books ever published on Michigan fishing is now ready for distribution, according to William T. McGraw, director, Michigan Tourist Council.

A year in preparation, the new 36-page publication, "Fishing in Michigan," was produced by the Michigan Tourist Council in cooperation with the Fisheries Division, Department of Natural Resources.

"Fishing has become an increasingly important factor in bringing more out of state visitors to Michigan as well as encouraging state residents to spend more leisure time in recreational travel," McGraw said. "As an example," he pointed out, "a recent report to the Department of Natural Resources indicated that Coho fishing alone prompted more than $8 million spending on that sport in 1970."

Illustrated with full color photos, the book describes the how, when and where of Michigan fishing. Eleven pages are devoted to descriptions of Michigan's 20 game fish, including physical characteristics, habits and habitats. How to catch 'em instructions are provided with each individual fish description, along with tips on cooking. An entire section of the book is devoted to recipes.

For those who have never before tried their luck on this age-old sport, instructions on bait and tackle and how best to use them is included.

On safety's side, one page of the book contains Great Lakes safe-boating information as well as illustrations showing official U.S. Coast Guard traffic signals and warning flags.

From stream and inland lake fishing, angling through the ice to dipping for spring smelt, Michigan's fishing scene is completely covered, according to McGraw.

"If It Fitz . . ."

Church Is improving

By Jim Fitzgerald

This man said maybe God doesn't exist in a human form, maybe He's a mass of electricity.

I nudged my wife and whispered: "Is our Edison bill paid?"

Another man said he believed in God OK but he had a hang-up on Jesus Christ. The resurrection is a lot of malarkey to him and Easter is just another Sunday except he is always careful to wear a clean shirt to church.

A third man said maybe God is dead but did it really make any difference?

And a young woman said she talked to God regularly, usually at home.

This was not a bunch of heretics sounding off in the corner saloon. These people were standing up and sounding off during Easter services in my favorite church. I was there for the usual religious reasons: my daughter was singing "Everything Is Beautiful" but things wouldn't have been so beautiful for me if I hadn't shown up to hear her.

Veteran readers of this weekly nonsense may recall it was in 1965 that I wrote a column titled "My Church Is Inside." It was in response to a reader who asked why I didn't go to church every Sunday. I told him. I said I was turned off by preachers who were constantly quoting the Bible and counting heads and raising funds to build magnificent, tax-free churches that were really country clubs. I said too many preachers were speechless on the real moral issues—such as racial injustice—and too many congregations refused to listen to any minister who dared promote true Christianity as it was taught by Jesus Christ.

This is no attempt to revive that old hassle. Reader response at the time established firmly that I am either a sacrilegious sap or a fine fellow, take your pick, that's what makes the world go 'round. Some people think preachers should stick to their pulpits. My gang think preachers should go to wherever the good fight needs fighting, be it city hall or the county jail, even if it means cancelling the 7 p.m. prayer meeting, for goodness sake. To each his own, as it is tattooed over my indignation.

But, six years later, I would be remiss if I didn't admit that things are looking better as judged by the standards of a guy whose "church is inside."

My favorite church (organized) is constantly taking kids to visit other churches, Jewish, Quaker, Christian Science—the whole list. They also visit ghettos and give deprived children some love.

Some local congregations hold joint services, Catholic and Protestant. The most splendid sight I've seen in years is Catholic priests and nuns in a Protestant church, singing loudly. It made my skin prickle and I felt good. When I was a kid, a bolt of lightning would have flattened the church.

There was a Sunday when a fine tenor stood up in the choir loft and sang "What's It All About, Alfie?" from the raga movie of the same name. There was a black visitor from a Detroit slum. His grammar was ragged but his story was about how some lost boys needed finding. Everyone listened hard and then gave him some help.

And then there was Easter when the pastor sat in the congregation and let the teenagers run the service. And the kids invited the congregation to give their own sermons. And that man made me wonder about my Edison bill.

Excuse me, Pastor, but it was all so much more meaningful than the scripture readings which usually set me to eyeing the pretty girl across the aisle.

Onward and Upward and Amen.

Sunday Accents Religious Origin

Sunday, May 16, is Spiritual Foundations Day of Michigan Week.

Church bells will peal over Michigan cities and countryside, reminding residents of the religious heritage implanted here by their forefathers.

As they plodded into this uncharted territory, the pioneers brought their faith with them to Michigan. Spiritual Foundations Day pays tribute to that faith's enduring strength and points to religion's continuing role as the years march on.

Interfaith services, visits to religious landmarks, ecumenical programs, moments of silent prayer, review of the individual church's life in Michigan—all these and more are among the events which will commemorate Spiritual Foundations Day.

Thought For Food

Here's a cheese topper for broiled meat. Blend one part crumbled blue cheese with two parts softened butter, dash of Worcestershire sauce, and lemon juice. Spread on lamb chops, steaks or hamburgers the last minute or two of broiling.

For a gourmet touch, sprinkle half teaspoon caraway over roast pork. Add a pinch of oregano to scrambled eggs, omelets or soufflés.

One-half cup of cottage cheese supplies as much high-quality protein as one serving of meat. It makes delicious main dishes, whole meal salads and desserts.

Cook one pound fresh green beans until just tender; drain well. In small saucepan cook 2 tablespoons each chopped onion and green pepper in 2 tablespoons butter until tender. Add onion mixture to beans. Season with ¼ teaspoon marjoram, dash of basil, and ½ teaspoon salt. Cover; cook 3 to 5 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Brenda Sue Short, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Short of Frederic, and Benny Joe Pettyjohn, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Pettyjohn of Grayling, were united in marriage Saturday, March 20, at Mt. Hope Lutheran Church. Rev. Carl Weidel performed the ceremony before about 40 guests. Music was provided by Jerry King.

For her wedding, the bride wore a white full length gown of chiffon over nylon with empire waist and full sleeves trimmed with bands of flowers. She wore a shoulder-length veil topped with a white velvet bow and carried a bouquet of pink daisies with white velvet ribbon. She also wore a double pearl choker necklace.

The maid of honor, Susan Kimball, and bridesmaid, Carol Kratochvil, wore full length empire-styled gowns with deep red velvet tops and skirts of pink chiffon over nylon. They wore short veils of deep red net topped with matching velvet bows and carried bouquets of pink daisies with pink velvet ribbon. They wore single pearl choker necklaces, gifts of the bride.

Thomas Kimball served as best man and David Pettyjohn was groomsman. A reception followed at the Frederic Town Hall, which was decorated with white streamers and bells. It featured a three-tiered wedding cake decorated with doves, rings, and bride and groom, which was made by Mrs. Tom Galloway.

Attend The Church Of Your Choice

"Look at the red kite up there! See how high it's flying!"

The little boy follows her finger, and she is warmed and gratified by his smile of appreciation.

It seems as if mothers are eternally anxious to make sure that their children get all there is to get out of life—that they miss nothing.

Mothers would, if they could, show their children all that there is to see and give them everything—time for fun, time for play—new clothes, new toys, a television to watch cartoons, endless red kites and bright yellow balloons and, later, skis and sports cars.

Yet, in this eagerness to show and to give, aren't they in danger of overlooking some of the most important things of all? What of beauty, of serenity, of joy—the knowledge of God's goodness, His love, and familiarity with His house on earth... the Church?

Sunday's Bay City Times carried an unsigned "special to the Times" highly critical of Grayling residents and others who have been looking for solutions to the multiple-use problems which beset the AuSable. There are several reasons the article is objectionable. One of them is that what was written was an editorial which appeared in the news columns. A news story always shows both sides and generally lets the reader draw his own conclusions. This article, which doesn't even have a date line, is strictly opinion and one-sided. Quoting Deputy DNR Director Warren Shapton, the article says, "If the AuSable is designated as a natural river under the State's Natural Rivers Act of 1970, the State will be able to establish controls if local governmental units involved do not institute adequate zoning within a year after such designation." Shapton should know better. The study groups he requested be set up did their job this past winter and made the recommendations. Study groups are not law making groups. I would also ask what is meant by "adequate zoning"? What about the Green Belt zoning - a model plan which is now being adopted by communities across the country? That started right here.

The article goes on to quote Win P. Case of Saginaw as saying "The canoe livery operators had agreed not to transport canoes to the North Branch of the AuSable. And they agreed, too, not to increase the numbers of canoes on the main AuSable for the next two years." But the operators, according to Case, "backed out". Not true. The operators are still living up to their agreement - even though such an arrangement might be construed as in restraint of trade and therefore illegal. They've done this voluntarily at the request of the same groups the article criticizes.

The article quotes Case as blaming Harrison Goodhue, President of the AuSable River Property Owners Association, for the alleged "backing out" of the canoe operators. Ridiculous. Goodhue and other property owners along the AuSable are well aware that the AuSable is a public stream and that canoeists as well as fishermen have a right to use it. To assume that the property owners would work to ban or even severely limit the use of canoes would be to assume that these people are not intelligent human beings. They are fully aware that such propositions would only put them in a bad, dog-in-the-manger, light. "Rowdism and vandalism" are indeed the real problems - not the canoes per se. And that can apply to fishermen as well as canoeists.

It would appear that Shapton, Case and the others expect Harrison Goodhue to act in an extralegal and selfish manner. He's done all he can and he's done it well. The article also has this little beauty. "While some members of the committee feel the winter was frittered away, Shapton was not exactly surprised. It is apparent to him that local residents are unwilling to take responsibility for any restrictions which would offend friends or alienate business interests." This is a totally irresponsible statement which demeans the efforts of a great many local residents who worked long, hard hours at their own expense to make recommendations requested by the DNR.

Let Mr. Shapton consider this: How come the DNR has indicated to local study groups that laws regulating canoes were on the books? A recent meeting of legal and county officials shows that not one single law regulating canoes is on the books. Not one. Let the DNR work on that for awhile. Let them make legal recommendations to the State about controlling unlimited use of the rivers. The simple fact of the matter is the only power the Marine Patrol of the Sheriff's Department has right now is an arrest on "disorderly conduct". It would appear to me that those who criticize the efforts of dedicated citizens who have little legal power had better do some seedling in their own back yards. Throwing fertilizer isn't enough.

JUNIOR-SENIOR VISITATION DAY AT KIRTLAND

Kirtland Community College hosted a "Junior-Senior Visitation Day" on campus last week with over 500 high school students in attendance. Schools represented were Crawford AuSable (Grayling), Fairview, Gerrish-Higgins (Roscommon), Hale Houghton Lake, Johannesburg, Midland-Bullock Creek, Mio AuSable, Ogemaw Heights, (West Branch-Rose City) and Standish-Stirling.

After a general introduction to Kirtland Community College in the new auditorium, the group disbursed into smaller sections to learn about specific courses of study offered at Kirtland and a complete tour of the campus. Activities for this day were coordinated by Counselor Gene Lukshaitis, who expressed appreciation for the assistance of many faculty and staff members.

Over all response by the participants seemed to be most favorable.

Women of the Moose

The meeting of May 3 was called to order with 16 members present. The nominating committee read the names that were placed on the ballot for our next year officers.

It was chapter night program, nicely presented by Frances Barclay, Academy of Friendship chairman. We enrolled three new members, Cheryl Lozon, Eva M. Barri and Marlene Lippard. Glad to have you with us.

Jeanette Allison, Lillian King, Bernice Winston, Gladys Fischer and Wilma Sunday went to the Academy of Friendship meeting at Kalamazoo. They drove down Saturday, and the meeting was Sunday. Jeanette Allison and Gladys Fischer received their academy of friendship degree. Congratulations.

Wilma Sunday participated in the program. All were in formal dress, which was very pretty, and done very well.

All members who are in good standing with dues paid to June 30, 1971, be sure and come to the meeting on May 17th. Be there at 7:30 to vote for the new officers of your choice.

Women, how about checking your dues card, to see if your dues have been paid.

Jim Tobin Breaks Records, Gains Cage Honors This Year

JIM TOBIN — Action shot of the Vikings' 5' 6" guard during game last winter. Tobin set a new high school single season scoring record with 634 points and missed by 2 points of tying the single game scoring record with 42 points.

Jim Tobin, Grayling Viking's 5-6 guard, who averaged 30 points a game during the past basketball season, and garnered the most votes for the Northern Lower Michigan League All-Conference team, received honors from two wire-services and the Detroit Free Press.

Tobin received honorable mention on both the United Press International and Associated Press All-State teams, and was given a berth on the sixth team on the Detroit Free Press All-State selection.

Only a junior, Tobin practically rewrote the individual records book for the NLML this season. Besides his 30 point plus average, his other records include:

Most points, single game, 42; field goals for season, 151; field goals, single game, 17; free throws for season, 130 of 191 attempts, 68%; and tied Don Bodzick, Pellston, for most free throws, single game, with 17.

In league action, he scored 432 points in 14 games for a 30.8 average.

Tobin broke the single school year record with a total of 634 points in 21 games counting non-conference and tournament games, for a 30 point average, overall. The previous school record was held by Tira Neal with 426 points.

Charles and family left Monday to return home.

Art and Gladys O'Connor, Homer King Jr., Ginger Jones, all of this city and Don and Virginia Belcher of Luzerne were in Bay City Sunday where they bowled in the mixed doubles bowling tournament.

Family Fun Nite Success

The Bandbooster's Family Fun Nite Saturday, May 1, was a success because of the cooperation of the entire county. The donations of prizes by the merchants and professional people; a n d baked goods, novelties and plants by individuals was a great help. About 10,000 tickets were sold to the children who had the time of their lives.

Our appreciation goes to all who helped in any way. Watch the Avalanche for more detailed information when the committee have reported.

Library Conference At Gaylord May 11

An all day library conference on public relations, Tuesday, May 11, at the Otsego County Library in Gaylord, will feature an address by Miss Jan Stobart, librarian in St. Charles and former publicity director of Gerly Enterprises. At lunch, a lively film depicting the library's role in the community, "The Hottest Spot in Town," will be shown.

In the afternoon there will be discussion on the public relations problem and successes of individual libraries and on proposed legislation for the regionalization of libraries throughout the state. Attention will also be given to bills to establish a network of major research libraries in Michigan and to identify the Detroit Public Library as a state resource and appropriate funds for it. Frank Scannell, state librarian, and Miss Jean Johnson, state library consultant, will be available to answer questions. This regional conference is open to anyone interested in working for improved library service. There is a registration fee, and luncheon reservations should be made at the Otsego County Library.

Forest Fires

three-quarters of an inch. As in the past, rural landowners planning to burn debris in the open, must obtain burning permits before they set their projects afire. The permits are available free at field offices of DNR fire officers statewide and at local fire department stations in southern Michigan.

Under another tightened regulation which came into force last year, it is unlawful to discard any burning materials — lighted matches, cigarettes, ashes, etc., — in forest and grassland areas of the state. That fire prevention rule covers motorists as well as outdoor users on foot.

It means that motorists traveling in rural parts of Michigan must use ashtrays to dispose of their "smokes." The measure also requires footbound citizens in these same areas to make sure that their cigarettes and other burning materials are "dead out" when they dispose of them.
